AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS

“Friends of Children Fund” Annual Report, July 1, 1996 - June 30, 1997, indicates $2.085 million in funding from corporations. Donors include Procter & Gamble, Gerber, Infant Formula Council, McNeil Consumer Products Company, National Cattlemen’s Beef Association, Johnson & Johnson Consumer Products, Abbott Laboratories, Wyeth-Lederle Vaccine & Pediatrics, Mead Johnson Nutritionals, SmithKline Beecham Pharmaceuticals, Schering Corp., Rhone-Poulenc Rorer, Food Marketing Institute, Sugar Association, International Food Information Council, Merck Vaccine Division, and others.

Formula manufacturers “donate $1 million annually to the American Academy of Pediatrics in the form of a renewable grant that has already netted the AAP $8 million. The formula industry also contributed at least $3 million toward the building costs of the AAP headquarters.” (Mothering magazine, July-August, p.60; refers to a book Milk, Money and Madness by Naomi Baumslag and Dia L. Michels (Westport, Conn.: Bergin and Garvey, 1995, p. 172))

According to a New York Times article, the Ross Products Unit of Abbott Laboratories, the maker of Similac infant formula, purchased 300,000 copies of the AAP's "New Mother's Guide to Breastfeeding" with Ross' logo and name on them. In addition, "Ross, McNeil and Johnson & Johnson were the top three corporate supporters of the academy's $65 million operating budget...each giving $500,000 or more." (New York Times, 9/18/02, C1)

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRIC DENTISTRY

According to its website, "the AAPD Foundation welcomes the support of corporations who share [the] mission to improve the oral health of children."

In March of 2003, the AAPD announced plans to receive an "unrestricted grant to support important clinical, basic and behavioral research" from the Coca-Cola Foundation. The New York Times reported the grant to be roughly $1 million. (New York Times, 3/4/03, p. A16) According to the AAPD press release, "this affiliation will also create public and professional educational programs, based on science, that promote improved dental health for children." (http://www.aapd.org/media/pressreleases.asp?NEWS\_ID=212 ; accessed 5/22/03)

AAPD Foundation Corporate Sponsors

3M ESPE will sponsor the 2003 Continuing Education Course, "Restorative Dentistry."

Dentsply will sponsor AAPD's Table Clinics at the Annual Session for $15,000. Dentsply design, develops, manufactures and markets a broad range of product for the dental market. MAM provided a $30,000 grant to support the Good Health Starts Here campaign. Good Health Start Here education messages also will be printed on MAM product materials. MAM is the designer and producer of age-specific baby products such as pacifiers, pacifier keepers, teethers, bottles and drinking cups.

Oral-B Laboratories sponsored the Good Health Starts Here consumer survey and focus groups, for a total gift of over $103,000. Through the AAPD Foundation, Oral-B also donated 1 million oral care products, valued at $3 million, to Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program, which is operated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. WIC will deliver these products, including toothbrushes, toothpaste and floss, into the hands of needy children in Texas and Pennsylvania.

Phillips Oral Health supports AAPD's Annual Session Welcome Reception for $25,000 and the Keynote Speaker. Practicon, Inc., sponsors AAPD's Pediatric Dentist of the Year Award with an annual grant of $5,000. Practicon provides products and services that help dentists maximize patient care, productivity and enjoyment in their practices.

Procter & Gamble is a major sponsor for Good Health Starts Here, the AAPD educational campaign. Procter & Gamble is a manufacturer and marketer of oral health care products including Crest Toothpaste and Toothbrushes, Scope, Fixodent and Gleem.

Space Maintainers Laboratory supports AAPD's Board of Trustees Luncheons. Space Maintainers is the largest group of orthodontic/ pedodontic appliance laboratories in the world. Treloar & Heisel sponsored the AAPD Foundation Member Reception at the Annual Session in Denver, Colo. Treloar & Heisel designs, provides and services quality insurance plans specifically for professional associations.

AMERICANS FOR BALANCED ENERGY CHOICES

"ABEC is a national, non-profit organization designed to promote a dialogue with community leaders across the U.S. on issues involving America's growing demand for electricity. ABEC will advocate in support of policies that strike the proper balance between protecting the environment and providing for continued economic growth and prosperity for America's working families...America's coal-based electricity industry (producers, transporters, and electricity generators) have provided the primary initial funding for this worthwhile project." (http://www.balancedenergy.org/about\_abec.asp; accessed 6/04/03)

Americans for Balanced Energy Choices (ABEC) is a nonprofit group funded by railroads, coal producers and users, and electric utilities. Its sponsors include the utility conglomerate

Southern, one of the leading U.S. energy producers, and the American Association of Railroads, whose membership transport coal (Atlanta Journal and Constitution, 4/21/00). ABEC's advertisements advocate on behalf of the use of coal.

ABEC began a national television campaign in April 2000 advocating an increased use of coal for the nation's electrical needs. The ads say increased coal use led to improvements in the environment. The ad was scheduled to run indefinitely on CNN and Headline News (National Journal Group, 7/11/00). The total cost for the ad campaign will be "more than $5 million in 2000." (Atlanta Journal and Constitution, 4/21/00).

"[C]oal, rail and power companies such as Peabody Holdings Inc., Burlington Northern/Santa Fe, and Southern Co., provided funding last year to start Americans for Balanced Energy Choices, to develop grass-roots support for coal. ABEC has set up a Web site and prepared a media advertising budget of several million dollars to...counter the influence of environmental organizations." (Washington Post, March 25, 2001, A05)

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

According to a story in the New York Times, "The American Cancer Society... has endorsed Florida orange juice...." (8/13/97) . See also World Tonight News With Peter Jennings (8/13/97); The Osgood File, CBS News (8/13/97). An editorial in the New England Journal of Medicine stated: "And why should the American Cancer Society endorse only SmithKline Beecham's antismoking products?" Jerome P. Kassirer & Marcia Angell (9/4/97, p. 700) See also, Los Angeles Time (8/13/97). The ACS, however, denies that its actions are endorsements. Rather, it characterizes such transactions as a license for the "nonexclusive use of its logo on Florida orange juice and SmithKline Beecham's antismoking products" in "exchange for monetary grants and other considerations used for the fight against cancer." (e-mail to CSPI from William J.

Dalton, Chief Counsel, ACS, 5/30/01) The ACS's "Cancer Facts & Figures - 1998" acknowledges on the front and back cover "a generous grant" by Glaxo Wellcome drug company. According to Advertising Age, the ACS was involved in a deal with General Mills to include information on packages of Wheaties (1/17/00; p. 54).

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION

The AHA offers food manufacturers a food certification program, labeling with the Association's "heart-check mark" foods that are low in fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol. To cover the costs of administering the program, the AHA charges companies on a per product basis $7,500 for 1-9 products, $6,750 for 10-24 products and $5,940 for 25-99 products in their first year. To renew in subsequent years, the prices are $4,500, $4,050, and $3,570 respectively. (Email from Wilma Davis to CSPI, written 5/22/03; on file at CSPI) CSPI estimates that in 2002, with over 630 products certified, the AHA received over $2 million from its food certification program. (<http://216.110.59.27/productlist.aspx>; accessed 5/22/03)

Merck is spending $400,000 to finance an AHA program teaching 40,000 doctors to treat cholesterol according to guidelines. (Wall Street Journal, 6/14/98)

American Heart Association was paid $450,000 by the Florida grapefruit growers for exclusive grapefruit use of the Association's heart-healthy endorsement. (Phila. Inquirer, 5/7/97)

American Heart Association has received $1.1 million (and an annual renewal potential of about $300,000) from food manufacturers as license fees to use the "heart check mark." (Philadelphia Inquirer, 5/7/97)

AHA charges $2,500 (plus a yearly renewal charge of $650) for a company to put the association's heart-check symbol on a package. Florida Dept. of Citrus paid $450,000 for exclusive promotion and advertising contract from 1994 until early 1997. The National Cattlemen's Beef Association paid $25,000 for its arrangement with the AHA to promote lean cuts of beef. For an agreement with ConAgra in 1992-93, the AHA received $3,500,000 for a TV program on nutrition. For companies that want an exclusive agreement with the AHA like that of the Florida citrus growers, the cost is $55,000 a quarter or $200,000 a year. Without exclusivity the cost is $25,000 a quarter or $90,000 a year. (New York Times, 10/22/97)

National Livestock and Meat Board gave $189,000 to the AHA to sponsor the HeartRide cycling series. AHA says the program will help ensure that people don't think that AHA recommends abstaining from meat. (IEG Sponsorship Report, on file at CSPI)

American Heart Association has endorsed only Bayer aspirin. (New England Journal of Medicine, 9/4/97, p. 700) According to Kramer Laboratories, Inc. (Miami), "Bayer, as we understand it, contributes over $500,000 a year to the American Heart Association." (Letter to AHA, 9/23/96) Web site is sponsored by Pfizer, Campbell, ConAgra (Healthy Choice), and Hoechst (Tufts Nutrition Navigator web site).

AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

AMA planned a campaign to remind doctors of ethical guidelines limiting their acceptance of gifts from pharmaceutical companies. The campaign was to be sponsored by Eli Lilly Corporation. (USA Today, 4/27/01, "Drugmakers bankroll ethics guidelines on 'freebies'")

In 1997, the American Medical Association agreed to endorse products made by the Sunbeam Corporation. The five-year agreement would have placed the AMA's logo on a line of thermometers, blood pressure monitors, and other home healthcare products and generated millions of dollars in royalties for the medical group (New York Times, 8/13/97, p. A1). However, the AMA hadn't evaluated the quality and cost of the products (New York Times, 5/17/97, p. D6). As a result of media publicity and concerned AMA members, the deal was scrapped and five of the group's executive leadership left the AMA (New York Times, 9/20/97, p. D2; Chicago Sun Times, 11/1/97, p. A1). Subsequently, Sunbeam sued the AMA for breach of contract and won a $9.9 million settlement. (Medical Industry Today, 8/4/98)

The Chicago Sun-Times reported that in early 1996 Procter & Gamble/olestra, through its PR agency, gave the AMA a check for $800,000 in partial support of an AMA fitness program; the check, which was later returned, came after the AMA issued a statement endorsing the FDA's approval of olestra. (AMA press release, Jan. 1996; Chicago Sun-Times, 11/26/97, p. 70)

AMERICAN MEDICAL WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

AMWA cosponsored the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers website (see NAMM site; reported in AMWA website, December 18, 1997).

“AMWA's Advanced Curriculum on Women's Health Part I and Part II were sponsored by educational grants from The Upjohn Company, which were instrumental in developing the curriculum, and by contributions from Aetna Health Plans, Astra/Merck, Bristol-Meyers Squibb Company, Marion Merrell Dow, Mead Johnson Division, Trylon Corporation, and Zeneca Pharmaceuticals. Contributions are being solicited for the 1998 program.” (<http://www.amwa.org/>, December 18, 1997)

The Education Project on Coronary Heart Disease in Women is funded by an unrestricted educational grant from Dupont Radiopharmaceuticals. The nutritional module is funded by an unrestricted educational grant from the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers. (<http://www.amwa.org/>, December 18, 1997)

According to Modern Healthcare, the AMWA Product Acceptance Program, which was active from 1985 to at least 1998, included NatureMade Vitamins. A nonexclusive arrangement cost $25,000 to review a product to see if it enhances women's health, and can say “AMWA Accepted.” (Modern Healthcare, 2/2/98)

AMERICAN VETERINARY MEDICINE ASSOCIATION

A September 15, 1997, AVMA statement said:

“Bayer Animal Health and Hill’s Pet Nutrition Inc. have pledged major financial commitments to the AVMA over the next few years. AVMA president (1996-1997), Dr. Mary Beth Leininger, told attendees: ‘Tonight, two great companies Hill’s Pet Nutrition Inc. and Bayer Animal Health are joining with me in making the first public announcement of an unprecedented level of corporate support for our profession and our Association.... Each of the companies has generously pledged to provide the profession and AVMA with ground breaking support over the next three to five years. This historic action on the part of Hill’s and Bayer will take the form of direct financial support of AVMA-sponsored programs and projects and the allocation of their corporate resources to greatly enhance these efforts. With tonight’s announcement, Hill’s and Bayer have gone beyond simple sponsorship. These two companies are showing through this historic and unique commitment an understanding and belief in the important interrelationship between our profession and the entire animal health care industry that we have not seen before.”

[Robert Wheeler, chairman and CEO of Hill’s:] “Today I take great pleasure in announcing that Hill’s will fund AVMA at a level of $1 million over three years. These funds will support the AVMA convention and a myriad of other meetings in disaster relief, animal welfare, educational symposia, and veterinary practice management.”

[John Payne of Bayer said:] “That’s why I am proud to announce a long-range, five-year financial commitment to the AVMA.”

“Dr. Leininger summed it up. ‘This is a landmark day for all of us, thanks to Bayer and Hill’s.’”

CENTER FOR INDOOR AIR RESEARCH

According to the minutes of a meeting of the Tobacco Institute's Executive Committee, the Center for Indoor Air Research was initially formed and funded by Lorillard, Philip Morris and R.J. Reynolds to "sponsor and foster research in indoor air issues with emphasis on environmental tobacco smoke."

(http://www.tobaccofreedom.org/issues/documents/ets/cia\_center/; accessed 5/15/02)

According to a U.S. Newswire article "the Center for Indoor Air Research (CIAR) - was created for the very purpose of spearheading...deceptive industry efforts and was shut down by the state attorneys general as part of the 1998 state tobacco settlement. In January 29, 2003, court filings to support its racketeering lawsuit against the tobacco industry, the U.S. Department of Justice stated, 'CIAR was officially created ... to act as a coordinating organization for Defendants' efforts to fraudulently mislead the American public about the health effects of ETS (environmental tobacco smoke) exposure.' The Justice Department also stated that CIAR 'was not only used for litigation and public relations, but it was (sp) also funded research designed not to find answers to health questions, but solely to attack legislative initiatives related to ETS exposure. Lawyers specifically engineered and constructed scientific studies to get results that would be useful for public relations, litigation, and legislative battles, as opposed to results that would assist the scientific community in further understanding the health effects of ETS exposure.'" (Statement by Matthew L. Myers, Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids, in the U.S. Newswire, 5/15/03, National Desk)

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF CARBON DIOXIDE AND GLOBAL CHANGE

Founded in 1998 and based in Tempe, AZ, the Center is "dedicated to discovering and disseminating scientific information pertaining to the effects of atmospheric CO2 enrichment on climate and the biosphere."

CHEMICAL INDUSTRY INSTITUTE OF TOXICOLOGY (CIIT) CENTERS FOR HEALTH RESEARCH

"Conduct[s] leading-edge biochemical research studies and provide[s] training programs that strive to advance the quality of science used to address environmental and public health issues." (<http://www.ciit.org/AboutCIIT/About>; accessed 9/26/02)

The CIIT Science Advisory Committee "plays a key role in ensuring the credibility of CIIT science.... The Committee also reviews the Institute's performance in fulfilling the research objectives of the chemical industry.” Supported by the Chemical Manufacturers Association and by about three dozen major chemical companies. (1997 Annual Report)

“In 1999, the Board of Directors of the American Chemistry Council approved a Long-Range Research Initiative (LRI), which sponsors research on health and environmental effects of chemical use. In developing its research initiative, the American Chemistry Council formed an alliance with CIIT.... Through the LRI, support for CIIT is being enhanced and consolidated into sponsor-ship by the entire membership of nearly 200 companies of the American Chemistry Council.” (2000 Annual Report; accessed 9/26/02)

CHILDREN AND ADULTS WITH ATTENTION-DEFICIT/HYPERACTIVITY DISORDER/CHADD

About 20 percent of the organization's budget in some years reportedly was underwritten by Ciba-Geigy (now Novartis), the maker of Ritalin. ("ADD - a Dubious Diagnosis?" PBS and the Merrow Report. [cited Dec. 20, 1995] http://www.add-adhd.org/ritalin\_CHADD\_A.D.D.html)

CHADD was reported to have received from drug companies more than $1 million in grants and services. The Drug Enforcement Administration said, "The relationship between Ciba-Geigy and CHADD raises serious concerns about CHADD's motive in proselytizing the use of Ritalin." (DEA, "Methylphenidate (a background paper)," October 1995, p.4.)

CHADD received about $30,000 from Novartis and ten percent of its income overall from the drug industry. (Phone call, John Heavener, CHADD, to CSPI/M. Jacobson; May 27, 1999.)

"CHADD received $748,000 from Ciba/Novartis in the period 1991 to 1994 alone." (Law suit No. CV 1839 E (CGA); U.S. District Court, Southern District of California; Vess et al vs. Ciba-Geigy et al.; 9/13/00)

HEALTH EDUCATION FOUNDATION / HEALTH COMMUNICATIONS

Health Education Foundation was founded by Morris Chafetz, M.D., former head of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. Health Communications is the for-profit relative.

“...a group supported both by the public and the liquor industry...” (New York Times, 5/25/86, Section 3, page 2)

According to the Los Angeles Times, “[M]ost of the seminars done by Health Communications are sponsored. Among the most active sponsors are Anheuser-Busch and Miller [Brewing Co.]... Others who have sponsored workshops include Heublein; Citicorp, through its Diners Club program, and a number of hotel chains (including Westin, Ramada Inn, Ritz-Carlton, Omni) and restaurant chains. “ (1/18/90, p. H18)

“Excellent commitment from our corporate sponsors and the food and beverage industry has allowed us to TIPS-train 200,000 people in six-and-a-half years,” said Marc Chafetz [attorney son of Morris], president of Health Communication, Inc. (PR Newswire, 6/28/90)

“... Health Education Foundation, which has received money from the alcoholic beverage industry.” (Washington Post, 11/20/97, A24)

“Your paper took it upon itself to point out the fact that Chafetz’s foundation has received money from the alcohol beverage industry, a fact that he does not dispute. The alcohol industry, however, is just one of many industries that support the Health Education Foundation.” (Letter, Adam F. Chafetz, Washington Post, 11/29/97, A21)

THE HEALTHY FOUNDATION

According to the website, the Healthy Foundation was established “to provide at-risk populations with basic nutrients through supplementation.”

INTERNATIONAL LIFE SCIENCES INSTITUTE

Founded “in 1978 to work toward a safer, healthier world. ILSI is a worldwide foundation that is making a difference in public health by advancing the understanding of scientific issues related to nutrition, food safety, toxicology, and the environment. ILSI is governed by an Assembly of Members, which includes one representative from each of its more than 400 member companies, and an elected Board of Trustees of renowned scientists from academia and industry, all of whom volunteer their time and expertise. ILSI members represent the world's leading manufacturers of food and food ingredients, chemicals, pharmaceuticals, and other consumer products.” (http://www.ilsa.org/about/; September 22, 2000) ILSI has branches in about a dozen other countries/regions.

ILSI has received funding from the alcoholic beverage industry. (Addiction. 2001;96:197-202)

ILSI's fall, 1996, N.Y. Academy of Science conference on fat substitutes was funded in part by Procter & Gamble (Mother Jones, May/June, 1997, p.14).

NATIONAL ALLIANCE FOR THE MENTALLY ILL (NAMI)

“[A] November/December 1999 Mother Jones article, ‘An Influential Mental Health Nonprofit Finds Its “Grassroots” Watered by Pharmaceutical Millions,’ by Ken Silverstein. The article focused on the enormous amount of funding which NAMI receives from pharmaceutical companies, with Eli Lilly and Co. taking the lead by donating nearly $3 million to NAMI between 1996 and 1999. In fact, according to Silverstein, NAMI took in a little more than $11 million from 18 drug companies for that period.” (Kelly Patricia O’Meara, Insight magazine, 10/16/2000)

According to the Multinational Monitor: “while refusing to give specific numbers detailing how much money each particular corporation or industry association has contributed, League officials say that 39 percent of the group’s 1997 budget of $1.3 million came from corporations and industry associations....

“For example, a May conference, ‘Focus on Youth: The New Consumer Power,’ in Lake Buena Vista, Florida, is sponsored in large part by a coalition of major corporations that traditionally have been hostile to consumer interests, including Visa USA, the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association, the Chlorine Chemistry Council, Monsanto, General Motors, the public relations firm Burson-Marsteller and the National Meat Association.

“An April 1997 conference titled ‘Health Care: How Do Consumers Manage?’ was sponsored by major pharmaceutical and health care companies, including Bristol-Myers, Glaxo Wellcome, Pfizer, Wyeth-Ayerst Labs, the health maintenance organization Kaiser Permanente, Merck, PacifiCare Health Systems, SmithKline Beecham, and Pharmacia & Upjohn. Big labor unions are also listed as contributors to the conference....

“An Internet Fraud Watch program is being sponsored by MasterCard and NationsBank....

“One of three top contributors to the [NCL’s 1997 annual] dinner was Liz Claiborne. The other two were Allstate Insurance and Wyeth-Ayerst. The next five top contributors were AT&T, Edison Electric Institute, Monsanto Company, Schering Plough and Visa USA.

“Earlier in April, the League co-sponsored with the Electric Consumers’ Alliance a conference titled ‘Restructuring of the Electric Industry: What is the Impact?’ The Alliance is a front group for the Edison Electric Institute....

“A ‘Consumer Guide to Choosing Your Telephone Service’ was paid for by Ameritech.

“A ‘Consumer Credit Series’ of reports (Shopping for a Loan? How Much Is It Going to Cost?, Denied Credit? — The Credit Report Blues) was paid for by Fleet Finance Inc, a subsidiary of Fleet Financial Group.

“A brochure titled ‘Making Sense of Your New Communications Choices’ was paid for by GTE.

“A pamphlet titled ‘Take Care with Over the Counter Asthma Medicine’ was paid for by Syntex, a pharmaceutical company.

“A newsletter, ‘Community Credit Link,’ was paid for by Visa USA.”

THE NATURE CONSERVANCY

“The mission of The Nature Conservancy is to preserve plants, animals and natural communities that represent the diversity of life on Earth by protecting the lands and waters they need to survive. We are dedicated to preserving biological diversity, and... our values compel us to find ways to ensure that human activities can be conducted harmoniously with the preservation of natural diversity.”

“The Nature Conservancy works with the business community to find common ground between conservation and industry. We accept their financial and land donations, engage in cause-related marketing, foster direct conservation action, and participate in event sponsorship. The Conservancy always seeks to develop creative partnerships with corporations that result in tangible, lasting conservation.”

(<http://nature.org/partners/>; accessed 7/1/03)

According to TNC’s website, corporations can “partner with TNC using several different platforms, including:

- Philanthropic support:

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/mbna.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

“3M and The Nature Conservancy have enjoyed a partnership spanning two decades. We have worked together locally and internationally, on business councils and land transactions, and with the personal commitment and involvement of 3M employees. In the early 1990s, 3M generously supported the Conservancy's Last Great Places campaign with a gift of lands worth $3.4 million. In 2001, 3M made a substantial commitment to The Conservancy's Campaign for Conservation and pledged not only a gift of over $5 million but also corporate leadership through 3M executives.”

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/art9488.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

“Over the last five years, [The Orvis Company] donated nearly $5 million to The Nature Conservancy and other conservation organizations.”

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/orvis.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

- Cause-related marketing

“In 1998, Tom’s of Maine supported the Maine chapter of The Nature Conservancy through a $500,000 donation to the St. John River project.”

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/tom.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

“In May 1998, General Mills joined with The Nature Conservancy to support environmental work by creating a unique, cause-related marketing program for Nature Valley Granola Bars. The partnership linked Nature Valley's product with the Conservancy's dedication to the environment and has generated over $500,000 for conservation.”

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/art9489.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

“Since 1980, Bank of America and its branches have donated close to $2 million to help fund the Conservancy's conservation efforts at sites throughout the United States. Bank of America's ‘Conservation Check Program’ has generated over $400,000 since 1990.”

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/boa.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

- Conservation action

“The Home Depot in 2002 announced a $1 million donation over five years to help The Nature Conservancy combat illegal logging and promote sustainable timber harvesting in Indonesia.”

(<http://nature.org/joinanddonate/corporatepartnerships/about/homedepot.html>; accessed 7/1/03)

According to the Washington Post, the Conservancy received donations from 1,900 corporate sponsors. Corporate donations rose from $1.8 million in 1993 to $225 million [in 2002]. TNC’s unpaid 38-member Board of Governors has included past and present executives and directors of major industrial corporations.

“[In 2003], the Conservancy launched an initiative adopting the approach that would supply corporations with pollution credits....[General Motors] contributed $10 million to the plan....

“The Conservancy has profited by selling its name and logo to companies....for use on neckties, breakfast cereal, coffee, and credit cards. Companies pay six-figure fees to stamp the Conservancy's oak leaf on their packaging....

“Centex Corp., one of the nation's largest residential construction firms...pledged $3 million to the Conservancy. Centex sits on the Conservancy's leadership council, and the chairman of Centex Homes served on a Conservancy advisory board. Centex also has helped the Conservancy retain its claim of having 1 million members. The charity handed out more than 40,000 free memberships to Centex employees and customers....

“The Conservancy offers corporations seats on its International Leadership Council for $25,000 and up. A few ILC corporation members include: Exxon Mobil, which donated $5 million; Phillips Alaska Inc., which donated $1 million; General Motors with donations of $22 million in cash and vehicles over the last decade; the Centex Corporation, pledging $3 million; and Georgia-Pacific, donating $3 million in 2000.”
(Washington Post, A1, 5/4/03)

TNC's International Leadership Council

“ILC members contribute greatly to the development of the plans, tools and resources The Nature Conservancy needs to accomplish its ambitious mission of preserving the diversity of life on Earth. Representatives to the ILC typically are the chief environmental officers of their companies (i.e., Senior Vice President or Vice President).”

In April 2002, the society held a black-tie event in Washington, D.C., themed “Coming of Age,” a salute to the vibrancy of middle-aged women. According to a January 2003 Washington Monthly article, “The whole event had been underwritten by the pharmaceutical company Wyeth, which also happens to manufacture Prempro, the drug most widely used in hormone-replacement therapy (HRT) for post-menopausal women.... Some participants were taken aback. ‘Without mentioning Wyeth,’ says one, ‘It was like they were doing an ad for Wyeth.’ ... A week later, Wyeth presented the society with a $250,000 check at a special event celebrating the 60th anniversary of Premarin, the company’s other HRT drug.” (“Hot Flash, Cold Cash,” Washington Monthly Online, January/February 2003)

Novartis Pharmaceuticals Corporation gave SWHR substantial funding to mount an education initiative, which included full-page national magazine ads and a Web site, about irritable bowel syndrome (IBS). Novartis markets Zelnorm, which is used to treat IBS. (<http://www.talkibs.org/index.html>; accessed 8/20/03)

THE ADVANCEMENT OF SOUND SCIENCE
COALITION [defunct]

O'Dwyer's PR Services reports that TASSC is “leading the charge against what it views as the unholy alliance between environmentalists and the media” (Feb. 1996).

The office of Stephen Milloy (executive director of TASSC) is in the headquarters of APCO Associates, a Washington, D.C., PR firm that specializes in creating coalitions like TASSC. (Village Voice, April 29, 1997, p. 39)

According to the Environmental Working Group (EWG) this “sound science” coalition is supported by hundreds of corporations, including 3M, Amoco, Chevron, Dow Chemical, Exxon, General Motors, Occidental Petroleum, Philip Morris, Procter & Gamble and W.R. Grace. Its objective is to act as a speakers bureau to deliver the corporate message that environmental public policy is not currently based on “sound science,” and to counter excessive regulations that are based on what it considers “junk” science.

TASSC, according to EWG, was created in 1993 to promote “sound science” in policy decision making. TASSC’s extensive advisory board contains well known “science skeptics” S. Fred Singer, Bruce Ames, Dr. Patrick Michaels, Michael Sanera, and Hugh Ellsaesser.

Steven Milloy, executive director of TASSC, is a self styled “junk science” critic who previously launched the Junk Science Page through the Environmental Policy Analysis Network (EPAN), a group he started in 1996. Milloy is also a lobbyist for the EOP Group, a DC-based lobbying firm that represents the American Crop Protection Association, the Chlorine Chemistry Council, Edison Electric Institute, among others. Under Milloy’s personal listing of groups he represents through the EOP Group in 1996 were Fort Howard Corp., the International Food Additives Association, and Monsanto. According to the most recent edition of Washington Representatives, Milloy’s client list has grown to include the National Mining Association, among others. ## TUFTS UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF NUTRITION SCIENCE AND POLICY

Tufts University School of Nutrition Science and Policy held a conference on fat-modified foods, December 7-9, 1997, that was underwritten by Procter & Gamble. P&G paid Tufts at least $50,000 in addition to the costs of the conference, according to Tufts' Jim Tillotson. (conversation with CSPI/M. Jacobson, Nov. 1999).

Tufts University School of Nutrition Science and Policy's website, Tufts University Nutrition Navigator, is underwritten by a grant from Kraft Foods, Inc. (Website, December 18, 1997) Several of the people who oversee the web site have been industry consultants.

“Tufts University and Women First HealthCare introduce first-of-its-kind dietary supplement line for women over 45.” (PR Newswire; June 16, 2000) Tufts School of Nutrition Science and Policy informed CSPI (June 2000; August 2000) that the royalties are split among four entities: the Faculty, the department, the School of Nutrition Science and Policy, and Tufts University. Their research was sponsored entirely by a grant from Women-First Health Care, which is the company Tufts collaborated with. While the department owns the license to the product, Women-First has right of first refusal.

TUFTS CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF DRUG DEVELOPMENT

An academic, non-profit research group affiliated with Tufts University, Medford, MA. Founded in 1976, the Center's mission "is to provide strategic information for drug developers, regulators, and policy makers on improving the quality and efficiency of pharmaceutical development, research, and utilization." (<http://csdd.tufts.edu/>; accessed 6/5/02)

According to its 2001 brochure, "the Tufts Center is funded principally by unrestricted contributions from pharmaceutical and biopharmaceutical companies, contract research organizations [and] trade associations." (TCSDD Brochure, 2001, on file at CSPI; accessed 6/5/02) Those sponsors include Abbott Laboratories, Wyeth-Ayerst Research, Johnson & Johnson-Merck, Purdue Pharma, L.P. ## VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

MEDICAL CENTER'S INSTITUTE FOR COFFEE STUDIES

“The mission of the Institute for Coffee Studies is to investigate systematically the actions of the various compounds found in coffee using the most advanced biomedical tools; to identify potential therapeutic uses of coffee based on fundamental understanding of the pharmacology of its chemical constituents; to disseminate research findings and promote educational exchange with partner nations.”

The ICS was established by a grant from a consortium of coffee-producing countries (Brazil, Colombia, and a coalition of Central American nations) under the auspices of the Association of Coffee Producing Countries (ACPC), the National Coffee Association of the USA, and the All Japan Coffee Association. An International Advisory Board comprising leaders from the world of coffee has been established to promote the ICS.

(<http://www.mc.vanderbilt.edu/coffee/about.html>; accessed 7/9/03) Coffee industry members also compose over 60% of ICS's Strategic Planning Committee
(<http://www.mc.vanderbilt.edu/coffee/planning.html>; accessed 7/9/03) In 2001, ICS received an unrestricted gift of $275,000 from Kraft–General Foods, the maker of Maxwell House coffee. (<http://www.mc.vanderbilt.edu/reporter/?ID=1487>; accessed 7/9/03)

Following four paragraphs from Grocery Manufacturers of America (GMA) (<http://www.gmabrands.com/>, September 15, 2000) and Ceres e-mail, 11-6-98:

“Tapping into the resources of one of the nation’s premier academic institutions, the Grocery Manufacturers of America has formed a new strategic alliance with the Georgetown University Center for Food and Nutrition Policy. The Center ... will work with GMA to foster understanding of issues facing food companies....

“The Center’s Director, Dr. Lester Crawford, ... serve[d] as Academic Advisor to GMA on scientific and regulatory issues dealing with food and nutrition policy.

“GMA’s partnership with Georgetown University will provide us with a wealth of information and expertise on emerging issues impacting our member companies, from food biotechnology to new regulations on food safety and nutrition claims,” said GMA President and CEO C. Manly Molpus. “The Center will aid us in our mission to provide our members with the latest and more relevant analysis of food and nutrition policy.”

“The Center’s partnership with GMA is a natural fit because of our mutual desire to foster understanding of food and nutrition policy issues,” said Dr. Crawford. “We’re able to provide a forum where leaders from industry, regulatory agencies and consumer groups can effectively communicate.”
